Let America be America again. / Let it be the dream it used to be. / Let America be the dream the dreamers dreamed - / Let it be that great strong land of love / Where never kings connive nor tyrants scheme / That any man be crushed by one above.
Langston Hughes

President's Message

I had a "notification" from Facebook recently to remind me of something pleasant, so I went online to check it out. Naturally, I read other posts and comments as well. I realized that the reason I so seldom visit Facebook recently is that so many posts are political and depressing. I don't disagree with the posts that point out the failures of our politicians, and I enjoy the funny ones, but no matter how many I read and like, I still feel essentially powerless to change anything.

I saw the shock on the faces of the students who went to Tallahassee searching for support from the Florida Legislature, just to be told that killing children is less important than banning porn. I want to tell them they are not alone, don't surrender, don't give up, don't despair.

And I have to remember that I'm talking to myself, too.

The trade of governing has always been monopolized by the most ignorant and the most rascally individuals of mankind.
