President’s Message

Where oh where have all the statesmen and stateswomen gone? As we watch the latest spectacles in Washington, I am saddened and alarmed at the lack of morality, ethics and principles in a large percentage of the House and Senate as well as in the political appointees populating the upper levels of the government itself. How can some of those people look themselves in the mirror and not weep? Without taking sides, all but the most rabid and ill-informed partisans should plainly see their abdication of long held tenets in favor of holding onto power at all costs, including their integrity (if indeed they ever had any in the first place, which this writer doubts).

Our democracy is in a crisis of unprecedented proportion, under attack from within and without. Never before has it been so urgent that we the people wake up, get active and hold our representatives’ “feet to the fire” by demanding a return to collaborative government that improves rather than destroys our way of life.
