President's Message

This November, we plan to be away over the Thanksgiving holiday period. The last time we took a major trip was in 2008, so I'm experiencing a mixture of excitement and trepidation as the departure date looms. Even so, there's a helluva lot for which I'm grateful. We have a roof over our heads, clothing, transportation, adequate food and medical care, plus we've been able to save enough to afford the trip.

The pandemic left us relatively unscathed and we're supremely grateful to have been able to weather it together. My heart goes out to those who spent so much time alone and lonely while the virus ravaged our country. Thank goodness for Zoom, which enabled us to connect, albeit at a distance, with family and friends who might have needed a little boost.

As you gather with family and friends on Turkey Day, please keep us in your thoughts and know we'll be missing you and wishing you a lovely holiday week. If all goes well, we'll be back in early December and we look forward to celebrating the Christmas season with all of you.
