President's Message

Back in the stone age when I was a kid, we celebrated the birthdays of Washington and Lincoln separately - Lincoln on Feb 12th and Washington on the 22nd. Now we mark Washington's Birthday with a federal holiday on the 3rd Monday in February, though curiously, the third Monday never falls on Washington's actual birthday! Many refer to this holiday as Presidents' Day honoring all U.S. presidents but the official name of the holiday has never been changed from Washington's Birthday.

My personal opinion is that we have far too few federal holidays. Hope we see more of them in future.
